Serial Casting vs. Dynamic Splinting

<tr>
<td>Increased tone and spasticity, or contracture can return when casting procedure has ended with possible loss of functional gains.</td>
<td>Dynasplint® System’s LLPS technology promotes permanent soft tissue range of motion gains, functional improvement and tone management with regular use.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Many contraindications and inappropriate for many people—diabetics, broken or healing skin, hot and swollen joints, vascular disease, sensory loss and excessive sweating.</td>
<td>Very few contraindications—safe and appropriate for most neurological diagnoses, as well as burns, hemophilia and diabetes (not appropriate for DVT or unstable fractures).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Usually worn 24 hours per day until casting procedure ends, deterring patients from performing activities of daily living (ADLs).</td>
<td>Individualized wearing schedules based upon patient needs and tolerance. Worn up to a maximum of 6-8 continuous hours per day or night, allowing for periods of physical therapy, functional activity and rest.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Complications can include nerve impingement and skin breakdown—possibly leading to hospitalization, wound care, skin grafts and/or amputation.</td>
<td>All Dynasplint® Systems are easily removable—lined with lambs wool and foam to protect skin integrity, and to prevent skin breakdown or nerve impingement.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Can be labor intensive and time consuming. Requires high degree of skill with material readily available. Can be expensive due to repetitive efforts over many years.</td>
<td>Easy application. Practical and cost effective. One fitting by a Dynasplint® Systems sales consultant with occasional follow-up visits for minor adjustments when necessary.</td>
